"People need analog art to cope with the digital world—let's have some texture—some feeling, some color, some shapes and some lines which represent nothing!" —K.W.

Featured Artist – Denise Taylor

Old Chair, mixed media with gold leaf

I've been in love with photography ever since I received a Kodak Instamatic when I was a kid, but my passion didn't become an obsession until I switched from film to digital a number of years ago. I create color digital images as well as specializing in black and white digital infrared images. In addition, I have recently begun creating mixed media photographs using gold leaf and pastel applications onto digital photographic prints.

A lifelong Californian, I enjoy photographing our beautiful natural scenery, as well as gritty urban landscapes, abandoned rural areas, and out of state travel locations.

My stock photography portfolios are represented by Getty Images and Millennium Images. I currently exhibit my fine art photography at Art Center Morro Bay and on my website www.denisetaylor.net And my fine art, stock and daily adventures are on my Instagram at @denisetaylor and @denisetaylormonochrome

Collective Presents 2024 Awards

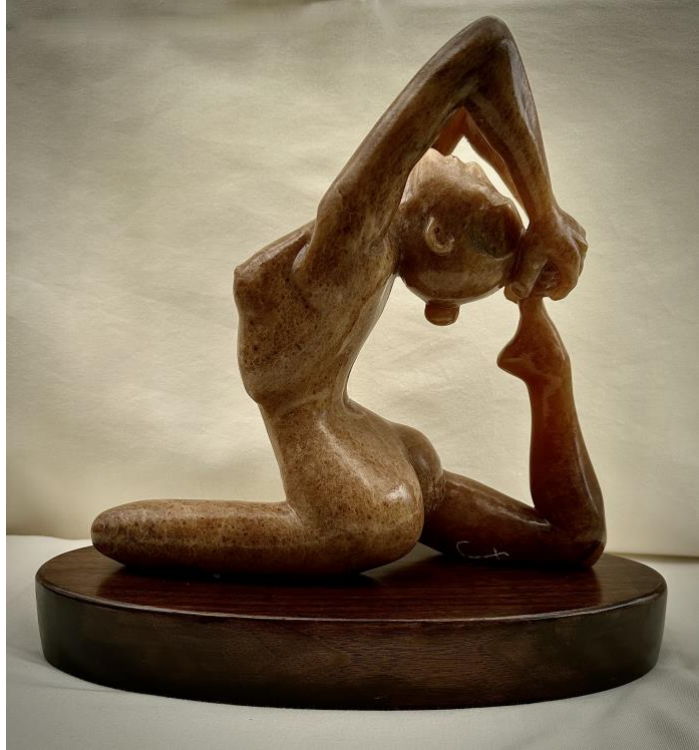

Talisman by Robert Schuerman, burl, Brazilian Agate, copper, plumbing parts, gun brushes, 30" t. x 18" w.

Third Place: Robert Schuerman, Talisman

A Talisman is a Power Object. This Talisman, larger than most, can seed rain clouds and un-send emails that you regret. Turned so that the agates are full-on, the aspect is warm and summery. Turned ninety degrees, the agates disappear, and an austere winter grid now occupies the space. The in-between view offers the balance of autumn, which is doing pretty good when you consider that it has a toilet ball float for a centerpiece.

—Robert Schuerman

Raja Kapotasana by Carl Berney, alabaster, 10 x 4 x 10.5", walnut base

Honorable Mention: Carl Berney, Raja Kapotasana

I have been intrigued by the Raja Kapotasana (pigeon pose) since I saw it on the cover of a yoga magazine around the time I first began carving stone. I believed the perfect triangular symmetry of the profile would make an elegant sculpture. I was not ready then to take on such a complicated figurative piece.

Later, I acquired a small triangular piece of alabaster about 12" on each side. I started working on Raja in 2020 but realized the difficulty of carving details in such a small piece—it all had to be done by hand (no power tools) — and I set the piece aside.

In 2024, I contemplated what to enter in Collective Presents 2024. I went back to Raja and spent long days in the studio, completing the piece with a few days to spare. This advanced yoga pose conveys the qualities of flexibility and grace while bestowing calmness. "Raja" means "noble" or "king" in Sanskrit.

—Carl Berney

Honorable Mention: Cynthia Moreno, Water Tower

Water Tower by Cynthia Moreno, ceramic, wood, wire, 63 x 10 x 10"

Relatively new to art, most of my sculptures begin with clay though I regularly incorporate other mediums in my ceramic pieces, such as metal, wood, or found objects. I'm particularly drawn to architectural shapes. I am fascinated with starting a sculpture and having it take unexpected turns to become a final version of itself.

Water Tower is the result of being inspired by the variety of water towers on the Central Coast and wanting to combine ceramics and wood into a towering form, seemingly defying gravity. Water Tower was a process. My preliminary sketches were just that; the actual sculpture quickly took on a life of its own as I explored the intricacies of joinery, balance, and dynamic tension to create the final version — with an added touch of whimsy. —Cynthia Moreno

Stephanie Wilbanks Demo: Stephanie Wilbanks gives a Free Demo on Kiln Formed Glass, Saturday, July 27, 3-5 pm, at Studios on the Park, Paso Robles. In this technique, glass is cut cold on a table, then heated and slowly cooled in a kiln for several hours to a full day. Most designs require two or more sessions in the kiln to obtain the final desired effects. Stephanie's glass art is featured at Studios for the month of July. <https://studiosonthepark.org/for-art-lovers/#events>

Stephanie Wilbanks

Ken Wilbanks' sculpture was juried into Art With A Message, an exhibition of the Orange County Center for Contemporary Art in Santa Ana, California, July 6 – August 24. Juror: Nicolas Orozco-Valdivia. <https://www.occca.org/EXHIBITIONS.html>

Off The Beaten Path
(conceptual photography)
By Bruce Cook
Central Coast Photographic Society
Meeting via Zoom
July 11, 2024 @ 7 p.m. pdt

Bruce's presentation will discuss how he discovered and ventured into a non-traditional genre of photography: Conceptual Photography. This genre of art enables the photographer to "create" rather than "capture" photographic images in order to convey a concept or idea, or simply inspire an emotion. In this art form the creative possibilities are unlimited and final images may be stark departures from the reality normally expected from photography.

Bruce is a photographic artist, structural engineer, international search-and-rescue specialist, passionate animal lover, wine devotee and Oreo cookie enthusiast.

Bruce's images are usually composites; multiple photos or parts of photos assembled and layered together to create the final artwork. Photography and digital post-processing techniques provide Bruce a medium to bring to life the dark corners of his imagination and produce images that span somewhere between fantasy and reality.

Originally from Southern California, Bruce fell in love with the Central Coast in 1975 while studying architecture at Cal Poly in San Luis Obispo and he now lives part-time in Paso Robles. Bruce's website is www.balancookphotography.com
